

Adelphoi Village is pleased to announce it has been awarded re-accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations in August 2010. Adelphoi Village has gone through the accreditation process on three previous occasions, and was successful each time. Once again, Adelphoi has earned full accreditation, cementing its commitment to children, youth and families and laying a positive foundation for growth.

The Joint Commission evaluates and accredits more than 18,000 health care and behavioral health care organizations in the United States. It is the nation's oldest and largest standards-setting and accrediting body in health care.

The benefits of receiving care at a Joint Commission accredited organization include increased confidence in the care provided because you know the organization is:

- continually working to provide the highest quality services
- periodically evaluated by the Joint Commission for compliance with the standards and other requirements
- provided with expert advice and education from The Joint Commission about quality improvement
- able to attract qualified staff because they have more opportunities to develop their skills and knowledge

Adelphoi Village is one of the few child care agencies in the state who has pursued this accreditation. This most recent accreditation reinforces Adelphoi Village's pursuit of program excellence for the benefit of those receiving treatment.
