Adelphoi Education President Douglas Carlquist Named Chairperson of Pennsylvania State Board of Private Academic Schools

Latrobe, PA — Adelphoi is proud to announce that Douglas F. Carlquist, President of Adelphoi Education, Inc., has been elected Chairperson of the Pennsylvania State Board of Private Academic Schools.

Carlquist has served as President of Adelphoi Education since 2015, overseeing education programming that supports more than 400 students annually from over 70 school districts across Southwestern Pennsylvania. In his role, he leads specialized academic and therapeutic education services designed to help students with significant learning, behavioral, and emotional needs succeed in school and beyond.

The Pennsylvania State Board of Private Academic Schools provides statewide oversight of licensed private academic schools. The Board is responsible for approving and renewing school licenses, establishing professional standards, and ensuring educational programs meet quality, safety, and compliance requirements across Pennsylvania.

Carlquist brings more than 25 years of experience in special and alternative education, including nearly two decades at Outside In School, where he served as Director of Education prior to joining Adelphoi. He also currently serves as Chairperson of the Pennsylvania Title I Neglected & Delinquent Advisory Committee and is an advisory board member of the Saint Vincent College Prevention Project.

Adelphoi Education Services offer a continuum of school-based supports for youth who require more intensive structure and individualized programming. Services are designed to help students stabilize, re-engage in learning, and make meaningful academic progress, while also addressing emotional wellness and behavioral health needs that may interfere with school success.

Programs at Adelphoi Education include emotional support classrooms, Partial Hospitalization Programs, and therapy integrated into school settings, along with individualized instruction and special education services that align with each student's needs. Adelphoi also partners closely with school districts to support students who may be struggling with trauma, school avoidance, behavioral challenges, or mental health concerns, helping them build skills, confidence, and long-term stability.
